

Washington — The state department is not shouting it from the rooftops, but a new era of diplomatic cooperation with the British empire has begun.

The initiative in this came from the British, and was inspired by Britain's new prime minister, Neville Chamberlain. At a meeting of Dominion prime ministers at the recent imperial conference, Chamberlain spoke almost with emotion in his voice of relations with the U. S. A.

He said that any alignment between the dominions and the mother country was inconceivable without the United States. They were discussing the prospects of war in Europe and Asia.

The meeting was confidential, but friendly dominion representatives arriving in the United States later relayed the information to Secretary Hull.

Aside from this, the state department has concrete evidence that Chamberlain's theories have been put into practice. During Baldwin's regime, U. S. officials never knew exactly what British policy was. The foreign office seemed always in a fog.

Now they say British policy seems more definite, while the foreign office never has been more cooperative. However, Chamberlain has been careful not to let his foreign minister, Captain Anthony Eden, a very nice but nebulous young man, handle U. S. relations. The prime minister handles them himself.

Note—Some state department officials feel that the British have launched a campaign to win over the United States, now that war threatens in Europe, and that Hull and Roosevelt will have to be super-careful not to get sucked in by British diplomacy.

Illness
Eighty-two-year-old Andrew W. Mellon, who was secretary of the treasury longer than any other man in history, has been seriously ill for some weeks with a cardiac condition.

He has been confined to his Washington apartment, where he is attended by a day and night nurse. His illness has remained a very carefully guarded secret.

Annexing S. Prall, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, probably will not be able to return to his work due to a severe illness which has resulted in partial paralysis.

Two Young Leaders
Out of the confusion that struck the capital with the sudden death of Senator Joe Robinson, two figures emerged as strong men. A great deal is going to be heard of them in the future.

They are Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana and Senator Lewis Schwellenbach of Washington. Both are young first-termers and ardent New Deal supporters, also hard bitters and enthusiastic scrappers. When other administration nominees, struck with consternation by Robinson's death, advised shelving the court bill, Minton and Schwellenbach clamored for a fight to the finish.

Their unyielding attitude made a tremendous impression on the president, and in his councils of war he brushed aside older party chieftains and turned to the two freshmen.

Born in Wisconsin 43 years ago, Schwellenbach, tall and bespectacled, is now displaying the same mettle as on a previous occasion. This was during the rampaging of the late Huey Long, when the ebullient Kingfish had the veteran senate leaders completely cowed by his threats to go into their states and defeat them.

Irked by some White House slight, Huey waged a one-man filibuster against an administration bill. The senate was completely tied up and the leaders were talking of coming to terms with Huey when Schwellenbach took command. Forcing Long to continue on his feet some 14 hours, he broke the filibuster and drove him from the floor.

Minton, tall, dark and good-looking, is 47 years old. He served as a captain of infantry overseas and is one of the best speakers and rough-and-tumble debaters in the senate. He was the administration's choice to reply to Senator Brewster Wheeler's speech assailing the court measure. When Minton rose to go after him, Wheeler left the chamber.

Minton came to the senate in 1934 after defeating "Little Artie" Robinson, Republican incumbent with presidential ambitions. Had he been re-elected, Robinson was all set to seek the GOP nomination in 1936. Minton cut short these aspirations by getting a big vote.

COMPROMISE COURT PLAN IS PROPOSED

Hope To Win Over Present Foes By Amended Bill

Washington, July 20.—(AP)—An administration spokesman said today that a new compromise court bill possibly would be offered to win the support of opponents of the measure now before the senate.

This official, who would not be quoted by name, said there was decided belief all around that the bitter contest over court reorganization in the senate would "work out surprisingly satisfactory to all concerned."

He expressed these opinions after Vice President Garner had spent more than an hour at the White House with President Roosevelt.

Meanwhile on Capitol Hill senate court bill opponents abandoned their plan for an immediate showdown on the court bill.

After an hour's conference with a score of leaders of the opposition Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) announced it had been decided that when the bill comes up in the senate again "we are going to continue to discuss the measure."

Simultaneous Developments
The developments at the White House and the Capitol came almost simultaneously when administration and opposition leaders began to get back to work after their journey to the funeral of the late Majority Leader Robinson in Arkansas. They returned here last midnight.

The Montanan denied that the change was a sign of weakness. "We've got the votes anytime we want to move to recommit," he said.

The delay in the fight until Thursday gives the new majority leader to be selected tomorrow a chance to work out floor procedure for a test vote on the court measure. If a motion to send it back to the committee should carry, the bill would be sidetracked at least for this session.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip who conferred with the president yesterday, was one of those forecasting a quick settlement. He said the issue would be disposed of this week "without leaving a rift in the Democratic party."

Lewis, one of the 15 senators uncommitted, made it plain that although he did not like the court bill he would vote for it rather than have all judiciary reorganization defeated.

His statement gave the administration 39 publicly declared votes against 41 publicly opposed.

Case Dismissed

Los Angeles, July 20.—(AP)—Asked if he could positively identify Harry J. Geer, in court on a forgery charge, as the culprit, witness Harry Greenberg replied:

"I can't tell definitely unless he opens his shirt at the neck. The man who forged the check has dots of hair on his chest."

Geer opened his shirt, bared his chest. It was as smooth as an onion.

"Case dismissed," said the court.

Navy Ships and Planes Traveled 180,000 Miles in Futile Search

Honolulu, July 20.—(AP)—Navy ships and planes traveled 180,000 miles in the search for Amelia Earhart. Rear Admiral Orin G. Murfin disclosed today in a statement expressing belief the aviatrix and her navigator had perished.

"It is believed the search, as conducted in the area decided upon," Admiral Murfin said, "was effective and established beyond reasonable doubt that neither the plane nor its personnel are above the water in the area searched."

The hunt for the aviatrix and Frederick J. Noonan began July 2, when their plane was forced down near the end of their 2570-mile hop from New Guinea to Liny Howland

LEO KELLY MET DEATH IN AUTO CRASH IN WEST

Dixon Native Killed on Way to Rejoin Wife and Son

Leo L. Kelly, 33, native of Dixon and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly of this city, was killed last Monday eight miles west of North Platte, Neb., when an automobile in which he was a passenger overturned.

The young man, formerly a clerk at the Hotel Nachusa here, and recently employed in a similar position at the Hotel Clifton in Los Angeles, was en route to Rockford to join his wife and nine-year-old son, Leo, Jr., and was riding with Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Willerford, 24, and Wallace Tokensgard, 17, all of Los Angeles. Willerford was also killed and his wife and Tokensgard were injured seriously.

Funeral in Dixon
The accident occurred presumably when the driver fell asleep at the wheel. The car left the road and plunged into a ditch. The party had been driving day and night since July 16 when they left Los Angeles after a day's delay had caused a change in their original plans.

Kelly had sent Mrs. Kelly and Leo, Jr. on ahead a few weeks ago.

The body will arrive in Dixon Wednesday evening and will be taken to the Jones funeral home where rites will be held at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, followed by services at St. Patrick's Catholic church. The Rev. Fr. T. L. Walsh will officiate and burial will be in Oakwood.

The deceased was born in Dixon on July 31, 1903, and is survived by his parents, his wife and son, a brother, Harry, and an uncle, David Kelly, of the Dixon fire department.

Green Described Greatest Obstacle To Labor Progress

New York, July 24.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is described by Heywood Brown, president of the American Newspaper Guild, as the "greatest single obstacle in the path of the labor movement."

The New York newspaper columnist made the statement yesterday in a counter attack against the federation head, who had asserted Brown was a "communist stooge" in a verbal volley he fired at the Guild's switch from the federation to the CIO.

INQUIRY IN STRIKE RIOT SENSATIONAL

Use of Drugged Cigarettes by Rioters Charged

BULLETIN
Chicago, July 20.—(AP)—A six-man coroner's inquest jury retired at 1:17 P. M. (C. S. T.) today to determine whether there was criminal liability for the deaths of 10 persons in the Memorial Day battle between steel strike demonstrators and police.

BULLETIN
Chicago, July 20.—(AP)—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of a justifiable homicide today in reporting on the deaths of 10 persons slain in the Memorial Day steel strike riot in South Chicago.

The jury, comprising six unemployed members of the American Legion, deliberated slightly less than an hour. Presentation of evidence required six days.

In each of the 10 fatalities the jury reported, the "deceased came to his death from bullet wounds inflicted by an unknown police officer."

"We believe that the death of (name) was justifiable homicide," the jury announced in each case.

The jurors said they found that the deceased came to their deaths while marching with a large body of "well-armed" persons attempting to "force their way" through police lines to reach the plant of the Republic Steel Corporation.

Chicago, July 20.—(AP)—An ice cream bar vendor, Clyde James, 19, testified today he saw "300 or 400" steel strike demonstrators carrying clubs in a parade that preceded the Memorial Day battle with police in which 10 were killed.

James told a coroner's inquest jury he sold ice cream at the strikers' tavern headquarters a quarter mile from the Republic Steel corporation plant during a mass meeting that preceded the parade and riot.

He said he saw banners handed through a tavern window to 35 or 40 marchers as they began to line up and heard one man say, "break off the bottom part and use them as clubs."

James said "many" of the "300 or 400" he saw carrying clubs not attached to banners had "sections of two-by-fours, some four to six feet long."

One Had "Gat Loaded"
James testified he saw one man tap his right hip pocket and say "I've got my gat loaded" and "we will try to take the place today."

Investigation of a charge that strikers smoked narcotic cigarettes before the riot was ordered.

Judge Frank M. Padden in felony court continued until Sept. 14 hearings for 64 defendants arrested after the riot on charges of conspiracy to commit an illegal act. Opposing attorneys agreed to avoid conflict with the inquest sessions.

Coroner Frank Walsh instructed Policemen Phillip Igoe and Robert J. Mautner to appear as witnesses after the latter submitted information concerning the narcotics.

Drugged Cigarettes?
Policemen Igoe was one of the officers injured in the riot. He told Mautner, the latter declared, he had evidence that demonstrators

Pets are Groomed for Big Parade in Dixon on Saturday

Many of the young folks in Dixon are grooming their pets to enter the big pet parade that is being held in conjunction with the Howard Animal Show on Saturday morning at 10:00 A. M.

They will vie with one another for the many cash and merchandise prizes that will be awarded. Attractive decorated bicycles will also be entered in this parade-one division for boys and girls. All entrants must be in front of the Dixon high school, Saturday morning at 9:00 A. M. to receive their entry number and be eligible for the prizes.

A group of judges headed by Mayor Wm. Slothower will decide the three winners in each of the eight divisions, a total of twenty-four winners.

The committee in charge wishes to emphasize that any young person in Dixon, Lee or adjacent counties is eligible. There is no entry fee whatsoever and any pet can be entered in the contest. The same rules stand for the division for bicycles.

PLAN SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Charles Spencer Hart, newly elected Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks, and Henry C. Warner, Grand Trustee, Dixon, at the Grand Lodge meeting in Denver, discussing a national safety program, which is one of a five-point plan that Mr. Hart is putting into effect during his year's administration. This program calls for the cooperation of all the 1400 Elks clubs with the city officials and safety organizations for the elimination of traffic hazards in their respective communities. They realize the necessity of some national organization identifying itself with a safety movement of this kind due to the growing number of accidents and fatalities that are taking place daily.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND SHOT IN HEART 3 TIMES

Apparently Victim Of An Underworld Ride in Harlem

New York, July 20.—(AP)—The body of an attractive young woman, shot three times near the heart, was found today sprawled alongside the roadway of the Harlem river speedway, apparently the victim of an underworld ride.

Hours later she was identified as Irma Louise Pradier, 35 year old French domestic, by a Catholic nun who had known her through religious work. Police were unable to learn immediately, however, where she lived or worked, or to discover any motive for the slaying.

Her clothes were rumpled and dust-covered and from their appearance the police concluded she probably had been tossed from a car as it raced along.

She wore a leather wind breaker, a purple blouse and blue skirt of rayon or silk, tan stockings and blue oxfords.

Detectors, summoned after the body was found by Patrolman James Walsh, of the Wadsworth avenue station, recalled the killing of Vivian Gordon, six and a half years ago. Miss Gordon, strangled to death, was thrown from a car in Van Cortlandt park after a life of dubious underworld connections. Van Cortlandt park is about four miles from the Harlem speedway.

Walsh was driving along the speedway on patrol in the early morning haze when he spotted the body on the cross plot between the roadway and the sidewalk.

A Columbus hospital surgeon found the woman had been shot twice below the heart and once above. Any one of these shots could have caused death, he said.

Strikes Again

Detroit, July 20.—(AP)—Walter L. Fry, president of Fry Products, Inc., who became the first "boss sit-down striker" last February, was on strike again today.

He told his 250 employees at a meeting last night he would quit work rather than deal with the United Automobile Workers of America. The employees voted to stand by the union and Fry today closed the plant which makes automobile seat covers.

Fry and his employees engaged in simultaneous sit-down strikes last February. Fry in his office and the employees in the plant. An agreement for recognition of union members ended the strikes.

TWO LYNCHED FOR SHOOTING OF FLORIDIAN

Tallahassee, Fla., July 20.—(AP)—Two young Negroes accused of stabbing a Tallahassee policeman were taken from the county jail—located four blocks from the state Capitol—early today and shot to death by a small mob of masked men.

Five placards, one of them saying "Warning, this is what will happen to all Negroes that harm white people" were found at the scene of the lynching, three miles from the Capitol and within sight of the heavily-travelled Tallahassee-Jacksonville highway.

Awakened by cries for help from the cell block of the jail, County Jailor Robert Maise said he found Harry Fairbanks, city police desk sergeant, locked inside the block. Fairbanks told him, Maise said, that a band of men entered police headquarters and forced him at gun point to go to the county jail and deliver the Negroes to them.

Condition.
Fairbanks was off duty when the Negroes bodies were found and could not be located.

The jail building is used by the city and by Leon county. City police have keys to the building and at night place prisoners there without arousing the jailer.

Authorities yesterday charged the two Negroes, listed as Richard Hawkins and Ernest Ponder, each about 18, with stabbing Patrolman V. F. Kelly, Sunday.

Police said both confessed each accusing the other of the actual stabbing. The patrolman is in serious condition.

McCabe Predicts Split In Union

Pittsburgh, July 20.—(AP)—President Glen W. McCabe of the federation of flat glass workers predicted today an open break in the union which is affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Peace efforts failed yesterday with a 41 to 7 vote by the seated delegates at the federation's national convention, barring 27 locals, most of whom were reported friendly to McCabe. The union's executive board has sought for six months to remove McCabe as president.

The unseated delegates proceeded with plans for organizing a separate union, asserting they would be joined by delegates from eight other locals.

PASSED AWAY SUDDENLY AT HOME TODAY

Heart Paralysis Is Fatal to Ether's Conqueror

BULLETIN
Rome, July 20.—(AP)—On the 20th I am going away. Guglielmo Marconi wrote shortly before death took the inventor of wireless today.

Vatican officials disclosed his possible premonition that the end was near.

Marconi obtained an audience with the Pope Saturday through a letter to the Pontifical Academy of Sciences of which he was a member. "I must see the Holy Father by the 19th because on the 20th I am going away," he wrote.

The inventor wished to thank the Pope for his nomination to the Pontifical Academy and to express his excuses for being absent from the academy inauguration ceremonies.

Rome, July 20.—(AP)—The Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, who invented wireless telegraphy when he was only 21 years old, died suddenly at 3:45 a. m. today (8:45 p. m. Monday CST) at the ancient palace in down town Rome where he lived and worked.

The 63 year old conqueror of the ether died quietly of heart paralysis. His widow, the Countess

GUGLIELMO MARCONI

Cristina Bezzi-Scala, was at his bedside. She had been called back from the seaside resort of Viareggio when he began to feel ill yesterday afternoon.

Their daughter, Elettra Elena, whose godmother is Queen Elena of Italy, remained at the resort and will not return to Rome until time for the state funeral. Today is her eighth birthday.

Premier Mussolini, whose ardent supporter Marconi had been, was notified of the death immediately. He dispatched a telegram of condolences and later went to Marconi's home in the Via Condotti.

The body was carried from the home in a rough wooden casket shortly after noon and taken by motor horse to the Italian Royal Academy of which Marconi was president.

It was carried to Galatea, hall and placed between the famous painting by Raphael, portraying Galatea, the Nymph of the Sea, borne across the waves in a shell and surrounded by nymphs, tritons and cupids.

The first intimation that Marconi was not feeling well came yesterday afternoon when he was forced to cancel an appointment with Il Duce.

Pope Pius XI, with whom the Marconi had been associated closely with the Pontiff. The first radio station at the Vatican was installed by him and when it was inaugurated in 1931 it was Marconi who introduced Pius, the first Pope ever to speak over the radio.

WILL PROBATED

The will of Margaret Fitzgerald who died June 14, was probated in county court this morning, Judge Leon Zick presiding. By the terms of the instrument the entire estate, both real and personal property is bequeathed to a sister, Ellen M. Corcoran of Ottawa, the same to act as executrix of the estate. Real estate was listed at $5000 and personal property at $700. Heirs named in the will were Daniel Fitzgerald, John Fitzgerald, brothers, both of Ottawa, Mary Schomas, a niece also of Ottawa, and a brother Maurice Fitzgerald of Utica in addition to the sister Ellen Corcoran, the only one to benefit.

Landon Guest Of Honor At Informal Dinner In Chicago

Chicago, July 20.—(AP)—Former Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, will be guest of honor tonight at an informal dinner tendered by Hill Blackett, director of public relations for the Republican national committee during the Landon campaign.

Landon, who has been Blackett's guest since Sunday, visited Frank O. Lowden yesterday at the former Illinois governor's Mississippi farm estate near Oregon, Ill.

Landon said he could "make no statement at this time," concerning his visit with Lowden.

World Skeptical
The world shrugged a skeptical shoulder and smiled tolerantly in 1895 when Marconi announced radio.

"I have discovered how to telegraph without wires."

Yet within a decade ocean liners were keeping in touch with each other and with shore by means of "Marconigrams" and hundreds of lives had been saved by prompt response to the old distress signal of "CQ."

And just as the Bell telephone followed the Morse telegraph, so wireless transmission of the human voice within a few years became a reality.

As an aid to navigation of both the sea and air, as a method of keeping explorers at the ends of the earth in touch with civilization and as a way of transmitting appeals for aid when angry elements have wiped out material methods of communication with stricken communities, the Marconi invention has become one of the great boons of civilization.

Half Century Old.
Marconi, like Morse with the electric telegraph, turned laboratory discoveries of secluded scientists into practical use. The actual discovery of radio, from a purely scientific standpoint, goes back half a century before Marconi.

"Hertzian waves" were the immediate forerunners of the wireless transmission of code signals. They were named for Heinrich R. Hertz, a German physicist who, by experiments between 1885 and 1889 was the first to prove that electrical waves should radiate from any system from which electrical oscillation was produced.

Hertz thus gave life to a theory advanced by James C. Maxwell (1831-1879), a famous British physicist, who developed to a remarkable degree ideas evolved by Lord Kelvin. The latter, in 1853, had proved that discharge from a condenser is oscillatory, a theory evolved in 1842 by Joseph Henry, a professor of Princeton university.

Father Uninterested.
If the father of Marconi had had his way, the problem of applying these laboratory cogitations and discoveries to commercial purposes would have been left to some one else, and in Marconi the world would have had instead a probably mediocre and unassuming physician.

The father insisted that his son study music. Apparatus in the home attic which the youth had designed threatened to pitch it all out the window, especially when the son proved anything but a success as a music student.

But like many another budding genius, young Marconi had a source of inspiration and practical help in his mother. Born Annie Jameson, of an Irish family, she had gone to Italy against the wishes of her parents to marry Giuseppe Marconi, a banker. She granted her son's wish to study physics and enrolled him with Prof. Vincenzo Rosa. She also helped him set up a workshop at the family villa in Pontecchio.

Many friends of the family looked askance at these activities, considering Guglielmo a visionary and a wastrel of good hours. But the celebrated Prof. Righi of Bologna became interested in him and gave him much sound advice and many valuable suggestions.

There was another who had faith, a carpenter who helped him the experiments and who said: "Signorino, I recommend myself to you when you have conquered fame and fortune."

In the spring of 1895 the Marconi wireless system was born. The youthful inventor—he was only 21—had found that two rods placed upright in the earth at a determined distance from each other would radiate electric impulses in accord with the laws governing the Hertzian waves.

He had established his transmitter near the window of the barn. The receiver was several hundred feet away and out of sight.

Giuseppe Vornelli, the carpenter assistant, was at the receiving end armed with a rifle. If he saw a magnetic arm vibrate he was to fire the gun.

Marconi pressed the telegraph key thrice, sending three dots, the letter "S" of the Morse code. A second later he heard the shot and knew that wireless telegraphy had been started on its way to practicality.

CARD OF THANKS
Rev. A. G. Suechting and family hereby wish to express their heartfelt gratitude to the congregation for the many useful and attractive gifts and other expressions of love shown them at their farewell.

microwave experiments. The Marquis Luigi Solari, head of the Italian Marconi company, the inventor's biographer and life-long friend, said that late yesterday afternoon Marconi came into his office "to talk about his microwave experiments."

Marconi's body will be removed to historic Farnesina Palace, headquarters of the Italian Royal Academy of which he was president, on the banks of the Tiber this afternoon to lie in state in the blue robes of an Academician.

A state funeral will be given for the inventor at 6 p. m. (11 a. m. CST) tomorrow, it was announced officially. An imposing funeral procession will move from the Academy, probably to the Church of St. Mary of the Angel, which is built into the old Roman baths of Diocletian.

Fascists believed Mussolini would walk in the procession. A friend of the Marconi family said Pope Pius learned of the inventor's condition before death came. The Pontiff was said to have arisen from bed at 2:30 in the morning and personally telephoned the Marconi home to inquire. He retired to his private chapel to pray for Marconi's soul.

Following a preliminary funeral service in Rome, the body will be taken for burial to Bologna where he conducted his first experiments in a barn on his father's country estate.

Rev. A. G. Suechting and Wife Tendered Farewell Last Eve

The congregation of Emmanuel Lutheran church gave Pastor Suechting and Mrs. Suechting and children a farewell last evening in the church parlors. The church was packed to the doors. It was an unusual reminder of the strong love expressed to them 14 years ago, when the pastor and his wife came to Dixon as a young bridal couple. The seating of the people and the entire setting plus the fine program took them back to 14 years ago when they first arrived in their new charge. Yet there was a great difference, a new congregation has grown up within the old. A people whose heart was filled to overflowing with love and appreciation of the work by those who had occupied the parsonage in these past years. The program opened with several touching vocal selections by Mrs. Harry Manges. Rev. F. H. Henke spoke in his usual humorous strain and with well chosen words brushed away the tears that flowed freely and turned mourning into joy. He admonished those present to love the new pastor as they have loved the old one. Both Rev. and Mrs. Suechting were visibly moved when they were presented with the following useful gifts: a most beautiful and very costly buffet set consisting of two crystal candelabras, one exquisite fruit bowl with a striking fruit ornament and engraved plate; one large octagon French mirror; one large charming table lamp for living room; a marvelous set of boudoir lamps; a very costly and fancy silver tray; and a fine purse. These lovely gifts and love tokens are a credit to the congregation. May God's richest blessing rest upon them and the new pastor. After the presentation of these numerous gifts a delicious luncheon was served by the committee. The congregation joined in singing several songs of farewell. The members both wept and cried for joy because of the fine promotion given their faithful pastor and his beloved wife. Rev. and Mrs. Suechting and family left today for their new home in Emmon, Ill.

Out-of-town guests included were Mr. and Mrs. George Bulmer of Morrison, Dr. Jacobs of Sterling, Miss Beatrice Bittorf of Sterling, Dan Sullivan of Amboy, and Miss Katherine J. Wynn of DeKalb. Chairman for the combined dance and dinner was Mrs. J. Frank Bennett. On the committee was Mrs. George Banta, Mrs. Harold Coss, Mrs. George H. Beier, Mrs. W. A. McNichols, Mrs. Dan Branigan, and Mrs. Ben T. Shaw.

YEARS AGO

Outstanding News of Dixon and Vicinity in the Past

(From the Dixon Telegraph)

50 YEARS AGO

Those who expected to see Sheffield's steamer, "around the bend", loaded down with women and men, were disappointed last evening. Captain Sheffield must have struck a snag, burst a flue or collided with an iceberg on the way down from the north.

Rosbrook's wagonette took a jolly company of young ladies to spend the afternoon at the Old Elm. The picnic was given in honor of Miss Sara Smith, who is visiting at Harvey Camp's residence.

The Woosung baseball club defeated the Oregonians at Oregon yesterday by a score of six to eleven. Wallie Worthington and Louie Seese played with the Woosungs.

25 YEARS AGO

J. W. Hoyle's trotter, Sonya Togo, took third money in the 2:28 trot at Aurora yesterday, having won the first two heats.

Thomas McCune, highly respected and aged resident of this section, passed away this afternoon at his home after several months illness.

10 YEARS AGO

Andrew Jackson Lawver, aged 85, who conducted the old Grand Detour ferry and was a pioneer resident of Ogle county, passed away this morning.

Painters today started renovating and redecorating the interior of the city hall building.

Canning

Reasons for Spoilage of Canned Foods Are Outlined Here

When a jar of good home-canned food spoils, its downfall can scientifically be traced to one of four sources—to yeasts, molds of bacteria or chemical agents.

But back of the technical reason, there is generally the word "carelessness" written in fine hand-writing, reports Miss Glenna Henderson, extension specialist in foods, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

As homemakers enter the big canning season, Miss Henderson warns one and all that the microorganisms which cause food spoilage are in the air, the soil, on the food to be canned, and on the jars, and that successful canning depends upon wholesale destroying of all sources of spoilage. More than that the food should be so canned that it is impossible for any microorganism to enter the jar and contact the foods.

Carelessness may take the form of selecting stale, unsound or over-mature products, canning too much material at one time, permitting the product to stand around in closed containers or in warm places before being canned, delaying too long between steps in canning, and filling the containers with warm instead of boiling liquid. Added to that may be an imperfect seal caused by not testing equipment beforehand, or inadequate heat penetration caused by too short a processing procedure or poor handling of the pressure cooker. Finally improper cooling and storing may be the fault.

Molds are a fuzzy growth, easy to recognize. They grow rapidly in damp, dark places where the air is stale and in the presence of sugar and acid. For this reason, they often appear on jellies, preserves, fruit juices and tomatoes or in fruits canned in a heavy syrup. Foods which are canned by the open kettle method, then transferred to hot jars, sealed and stored have had a chance to pick up the mold organism and may spoil. The wise method is to can fruits and tomatoes in jars in a boiling-water bath long enough to kill the molds and then adequately seal the jar.

Yeasts are the busy-bodied, quick cause of canned fruits and fruit products to ferment. All fermented products should be discarded since the natural taste of the food is destroyed, and it becomes otherwise undesirable. Tomato products and fruit products are the foods sought out by yeasts since the organism grows best in the presence of sugar. Yeasts are destroyed more easily than molds. The same method of canning used to prevent molds will also prevent the growth of yeasts.

The growth of bacteria in food is the most serious canning question, warns Miss Henderson. Bacteria are the trouble maker in canning because they exist in forms which boiling temperatures even for a long period of time may not kill. Bacteria are more easily killed when heated in the presence of acid as found in tomatoes or in fruits. However, non-acid foods such as meat and vegetables may contain the spores after hours of processing in boiling-water bath. Chief among bacterial spores to be dreaded is the "botulinum spore", which unless killed creates a toxic poison in food often causing death for persons who taste the affected food. Processing non-acid foods in a pressure cooker for the recommended length of time is the only way to guarantee protection against the botulinum spore.

Bacteria spoilage may usually be detected by cloudiness of the food, mushiness, putrid and disagreeable odors, gases, acid or other "off" flavors. Sometimes a canned vegetable may look perfectly good and yet be spoiled. Safety comes in not tasting home canned vegetables until after they have been heated—and discarding any that show even the slightest signs of spoilage.

Northern Illinois Herd Leads State In Dairy Testing

Urbana, Ill., July 20—(AP)—Northern Illinois herds led the state in butterfat production during June. It was reported today by C. S. Rhode of the dairy department of the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Setting the pace was the herd of M. R. Wessels and sons of German Valley, Stephenson county, with a production average of 542 pounds per cow. A herd owned by S. A. Ellsworth of Boone county was second with 521 pounds and a third, northern Illinois herd, owned by Walter Splinter of Winslow, Stephenson county, ranked next with 517.

The figures were prepared by Rhode from reports of dairy herd improvement associations operating under the sponsorship of the extension service of the agricultural college. The state average of all 22,633 cows on test was 28.6 pounds of butterfat.

Epworth League. There will be no League on Sunday evening, July 25th. There will be League, however, on August 1st and 8th.

Epworth League Institute will be held at New Lenox, Ill., from July 25th to August 1st.

The Fourth Quarterly Meeting of the Methodist church was held on last Thursday evening with Dr. Ralph M. Pierce, District Superintendent, presiding. A pot luck supper was enjoyed, followed by the business meeting which was largely attended by members from both Compton and Paw Paw.

The reports from the various organizations of the church showed a constant interest on the part of the lay people and indicated a healthy condition in every department of the church.

Among other things, Dr. Pierce stressed the observance of the 200th year of Methodism, and outlined a world-wide program of which he is the chairman. Dr. Pierce said that one of the most important interests of every layman should be an extensive reading in religious matters so as to overcome the false and fanatical religious teachings of reactionary groups that are springing up everywhere. Another thing is regular church attendance on the part of church people, and family worship daily in the home.

Rev. and Mrs. Coleman were invited by the pastoral relations committee to be returned for another year. The annual conference will be held early in October in the Court St. Methodist Episcopal church, Rockford.

New Lenox Epworth League Institute

Rev. and Mrs. Coleman, and a group of young people from Paw Paw, will attend the New Lenox Epworth League Institute from July 25th, to August 1st. Mr. Coleman will be a member of the faculty, and will teach a course in Methodism.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sherman of Belvidere, were Sunday visitors at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Coleman.

Forreston merchants are sponsoring a wild animal show here Tuesday evening known as Harwood Shows. It features apes, baboons and dogs, who will perform.

A number of people from here attended the barn raising on the Koel'er farm six miles south of Preepert Friday. The barn is 40x80 feet and is being put up by Fred Koel'er, local contractor and his crew of men.

The Amos Rothermel estate farm, consisting of 242 acres and located six miles southeast of Forreston was sold at public auction last Thursday to Lester Rothermel for $43.50 per acre.

Edward Ludwig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ludwig is reported improving after undergoing a nasal operation at the Dixon hospital.

Waukegan, Ill., July 20—(AP)—Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Sarah Stafford, who was 100 years old June 12. She died Saturday after having lived in Lake county since she was six months old. During the Civil War the home of her parents was used as a station in the "underground railway" for slaves. She once said she became "a good Republican for life" after hearing Abraham Lincoln talk.

Ponders Fate

American Who Lost Citizenship in Spanish Jail

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Salamanca, Spain, July 20—(AP)—Self-cast as a "man without a country", Harold Dahl, 28, of Champaign, Ill., and Madrid, Spain, sat in a white-washed insurgent jail today, running nervous fingers through his thinning blond hair and pondering fortunes of aerial warfare that landed him there.

Specifically he was concerned by these problems:

Would he ever see his wife again? He was married only six months ago.

Would he ever see Champaign again? He was convinced that under the United States neutrality law he had lost his citizenship.

Would he be taken before an insurgent firing squad some sunny morning and shot as a mercenary enemy of the Spanish insurgents? Or, would he be traded with the Spanish government forces for an insurgent prisoner? He said he was sure he would be shot if he goes back to Madrid.

Life in Cannes, France

Mrs. Dahl, meanwhile, is living at Cannes, France, where she is supposed to be getting the $1,500 weekly salary which Dahl said the Spanish government promised for his services in its air force.

The writer visited the disconsolate Dahl in his cell—the first American he had talked with in some time. He conversed freely on his service with the Madrid forces—a brief record abruptly terminated in a gust of machine gun fire that ripped the fabric off the wings of the pursuit ship he was flying over the Madrid front.

But he told the story like this: "It was a very silly move to come here for anything like this. I realize now—particularly when the only interest was money."

"I am not a Communist and never was but I had no job and I heard I could get plenty of money for flying in Spain. I thought I was coming here as instructor."

Signed Up in Mexico

Dahl came to Spain with two other Americans also hired on a month-to-month basis and arrived at Madrid June 24. He said he had signed up in Mexico.

The aviator explained that he had learned flying in the U. S. Army at a Texas field, about 1931, and became a reserve pilot. He added he was a graduate of Columbia University.

He flew only twice for the Madrid forces—July 10 and 12.

"I took off about 5:30 in the afternoon (or July 12) with a flight of about 45 pursuit planes protecting about 25 bombers. We were over Boadilla (apparently Boadilla del Monte, a few miles west of Madrid) when the air above suddenly was full of nationalist (insurgent) fighters."

Tells of Defeat

"Two planes near me came down in flames and another fluttered down and spun out of control. Before I knew what hit me, a plane had riddled my ship so completely that the fabric flew off the wings."

"I was flying alone in a biplane of Russian make similar to the American Curtiss C-12. I was up about 5,000 feet. I bailed out with my parachute and landed in an orchard on the front. I did not know where I was. I just sat and waited and a squad of soldiers came and got me."

"They took me to Navalcarnero, then here."

Dahl called the aerial warfare "the bitterest fighting imaginable" and said the government's air force was almost entirely made up of Russian airmen.

MOTHER UNWORRIED

Champaign, Ill., July 20—(AP)—"I'm not worried; he'll get out of it," was Mrs. Ida Dahl's comment today when advised of the capture of her 28-year-old son, Harold, by insurgent forces in Spain.

"Harold has always been able to take care of himself and his darling in this adventure doesn't surprise me," she said. "I didn't know he had joined the Spanish government air forces until he was on his way. Then he wrote me of his decision."

Dahl, born in nearby Sidney, was graduated from Champaign high school in 1926. In 1931 he enlisted in the Army Air Corps at Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex., and six months later became a cadet at Randolph Field, where he was graduated in 1933. He was sent as a second lieutenant to Mitchell Field, L. I., where he remained until 1935.

After leaving the Air Corps he was in charge of a CCC camp at Flagstaff, Ariz., before going to Mexico, where he married the former Miss Edith Rogers, one-time singer (with Rudy Vallee's orchestra) They sailed for France Dec. 9.

In Paris Dahl joined the Spanish loyalist government forces as one of the original American "four flying aces." Ben Leiden, former New York newspaperman, one of the four, was killed in combat.

An Appeal

For fifty years the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society has provided care for the children of Illinois whose parents were unable to care for them. During this time they have provided homes, clothing, and medical care for thousands of boys and girls and given them many opportunities for education and wholesome living that they would not otherwise have obtained. It would be impossible to estimate the gain in better citizenship that this has meant to the state.

You can help in this program as well as have the companionship of a child in your home. The society is needing homes for boys between the ages of fourteen and twenty in this district. They are particularly anxious to locate good farm homes. Some of the boys needing homes are experienced farm helpers, others have never been on a farm, but all of them are anxious for opportunities to improve themselves. If you are interested in taking a boy and giving him a home the supervisor, H. Shinson of Dixon, for the society in this district will be glad to talk to you about the plan.

TREATMENT FOR

- Lustreless Hair
- Falling Hair
- Baldness

The first announcement of the development of the Crosley X-ER-VAC some fifteen months ago was received skeptically by the majority of barber shops and beauty shops—and naturally enough. We had seen hundreds of treatments and concoctions for the growth of hair, come and go, without production of a solution to the age old mystery of baldness or hair re-growth. Others, however, who investigated more thoroughly and learned the scientific authenticity of the principle, involved, who understand the painstaking research that preceded the actual construction of the first X-ER-VAC by Dr. Andre A. Cueto, who realized the Crosley Radio Corporation could never sacrifice its world-wide reputation by manufacturing any product that would not meet every claim made for it . . . proof was produced, thousands of shop owners were convinced and installed X-ER-VAC.

We have installed one of these scientific X-ER-VACS and anyone, ladies or gentlemen, suffering from falling or dull, lifeless hair is invited to come to our shop and we will gladly explain these treatments.

WHERE THE PRESS IS STIFLED

One of the blessings for which the American public still may return thanks is freedom of speech and press.

Not all the people are so blessed. In 1914 freedom of the press was taken for granted in most of the world's republics, and in a majority of monarchies, constitutional or otherwise. Today the United States is the only major power in which the press may exercise full freedom, being restrained only by laws guarding against sedition, treason, libel, blackmail and by a sense of propriety.

The press of Great Britain and of the other great powers, suffers under more legal restrictions than are in effect here. Freedom of the press is nominal in France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Czechoslovakia.

In Russia, Finland, Germany, Poland, Italy, Turkey, Greece, the Balkans, China, Japan and many other political units, the press is not permitted to express the truth.

Not only is the press unable to tell the whole truth in many of these countries, but it is compelled to tell half-truths and even falsehood.

As an example, a famous German newspaper recently was forced out of business because it timidly ventured the opinion that grain shortage was possible. In Italy the government sends detailed instructions as to what newspapers may publish on foreign, domestic and local affairs. If a Russian editor were to make a stand for fair trial for those arrested in the Stalin blood purge, he would face a firing squad.

Thus the press in many of these countries suffers not only a negative censorship, but it must print what the publishers know to be false.

The press in Spain faces a dismal future. It is evident that no matter which side wins the civil war, a censorship is probable.

When freedom of the press is gone, freedom of speech follows after it, then perish freedom of the pulpit, and religious liberty.

THE ANCIENT, UNDEFINED ART OF LOG-ROLLING

Up in Escanaba, Mich., they are going to have a championship contest that is a championship contest this summer. They are going to settle the birling championship of the world.

If you don't know what birling is, that only proves that you never lived in a land of tall timber. For birling is the sport of the lumberjacks, those descendants of legendary Paul Bunyan, who sometimes seem to be just about the toughest, brawniest and most rip-roaring of all the two-fisted types America has produced.

To birl, you need a pool of water, a log, and a pair of steel-spiked boots—two pairs, to be accurate—one for each contestant. Donning the boots, you stand on one end of the log, and your opponent stands on the other. One or the other of you starts to twirl the log, and his opponent keeps pace with him. Faster and faster it goes, spun by the heavy spiked boots, reversing its spin now and then as one contestant takes it away from the other; until at last either you or your opponent is unable to keep footing any longer and tumbles into the water.

The thing is interesting to watch for two reasons; first, because a good lumberjack can do miraculous things in the way of keeping his balance on a spinning log, and second, because it is always fun to see a fully clothed man fall into the water. But beyond that, birling is a game that grew out of one of the most dangerous jobs mortal man ever tackled.

In all the great lumbering regions—in Maine, in Michigan, in Washington or wherever—getting the trees felled and reduced to logs was only half the job. They had to be got to the sawmill after that, and the usual way was to roll them into a river—thousands upon thousands of them—and let them float downstream.

Thus the great log drives came into being. For mile upon mile, a swift river would be carpeted with logs, so thick that a man could walk from bank to bank dry-shod. Now and then some obstruction would cause these logs to pile up.

It was then up to the lumberjacks to skip out under the face of this menacing jam, find the key log, and jerk it loose. Then, with a roar like the collapse of a 10-story building, the jam would loosen itself and go thundering downstream. If the lumberjacks were skilled and lucky, they would skip over the swaying carpet and get out of danger; if luck or skill failed, they would be overwhelmed.

That, in brief, is birling's ancestry. So you can see that a birling championship is something worth having, and worth looking at. If you happen to be in the vicinity of Escanaba on Aug. 13 you'll find this event something to see.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON SCOTT LUCAS

Scott W. Lucas of Havana, prominent in the national encampment of the American Legion before he entered politics, now representative in congress from the old Rainey district, arose in the house of representatives Thursday, paid tribute to the Texan, Chairman Sumners of the house judiciary committee, and then delivered himself of the following:

"Is there a single Democrat in this historic hall who believes that a continuation of this fight will accomplish a single constructive thing? Mr. Speaker, unless those in power call a halt to this useless, selfish, and futile gesture, I here and now predict that the evil path of the action may shatter the very foundation of American liberty.

"Mr. Speaker, if the admonition of the distinguished gentleman from Texas is not followed, the Democratic party will be split in twain and probably destroyed. It will be the beginning of the end of real constitutional government in this nation. It will further impair and destroy the lives of great men that a free nation can not afford to lose. Mr. Speaker, as our devoted and lovable chaplain said yesterday, I, too, pause here on the altar of prayer, praying that somebody, somewhere will call a halt."

The telegraph report says: "Members of the house rose almost to a man and thundered their applause when Lucas had concluded." Keep your eye on Scott Lucas.

Farm Wool Pool Better Than 1936

Lee and Ogle county farmers who participated in this year's wool pool will be interested to know that Illinois farmers will market through the co-operative pool approximately 200,000 pounds. This amount is indicated in a preliminary survey made by Ray E. Miller, livestock marketing director for the Illinois Agricultural association. This will exceed the 1936 figure by at least 30,000 pounds, or about 16 per cent, Miller said. "Local wool prices early this season were relatively high," he said, "but when the clip started they slumped as usual. The present market at Boston, where the national association maintains its headquarters, is from 38 to 42 cents per pound. Over the long pull, farmers who market their wool co-operatively are ahead."

1 Dr. P. A. In Italy 56 royal and princely families have persisted since that date. They seem, if anything, to have improved, at least they show no signs of degeneracy. ## FATHER OF GERMAN CRITICISM

GERMAN literature was in an unsettled state when Gotthold Ephraim Lessing came along, in the 18th century, and gave it a high standard of excellence. Precocious in his youth, Lessing studied theology, medicine, philosophy and literature. When he was 19, he saw his first play produced. He became acquainted with Moses Mendelssohn, Voltaire and other great philosophers.

His series of "Literary Letters," which he wrote from 1758 to 1765, form the greatest collection of dramatic criticisms in German history. Besides these letters, Lessing's most famous products are his "Minna von Barnhelm," Germany's first national drama, and "Laokoon," an essay, or collection of ideas, which forms the basis of his theories on literature and art.

As famous as he was, however, Lessing died in poverty. He had married when he was 47, but his wife and infant son died less than two years later, and he lived in grief until his death in 1781. Lessing appears on one of the portrait stamps issued by Germany in 1926.

More Cleaning

When hot weather comes our need for hot water increases tremendously. And this is just the time many of us are left high and dry as far as hot water is concerned because we rely upon the inefficient furnace coil for our hot water supply. Why not adjust your hot water supply to fit your living instead of having to adjust your living to fit your hot water supply? Greater outdoor activity in the summer—sports, gardening, motoring—makes warm water bathing a strict necessity, since cold water will not remove dirt and perspiration. Laundry demands are greater, the number of visitors increases, and more cleaning is necessary. All of these call for a plentiful supply of hot water at the turn of the faucet.

DEAN HURRIES BACK TO CARD RANKS TODAY

Cheering News For Frisch And His Gas Housers

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

It must be extremely cheering news to Manager Frankie Frisch that Jerome (Big Toe) Dean is hastening to Boston to rejoin his fellow St. Louis Cardinals and help them back on the right, or pennant-winning, track.

For the Dizzy One, if he sticks to his principles and precedents of doing the unexpected, wouldn't surprise anyone by using his sore big toe as the spring-board to a new winning streak.

Dean hasn't pitched a National League game since the Fourth of July; hasn't pitched at all since the All-Star game in Washington. That was where he stuck his foot in the way of a line drive and wound up limping to the sidelines.

Pilot Frisch, sorely pressed for pitching talent, has missed the Dean right arm no end. But, if he hasn't missed it even more, it's due to a recent discovery by the whip-cracker of the gashouse gang.

Johnson New Find
The discovery goes by the name of Silas Kenneth Johnson, and has been for some 28 years. On the Cards' current road trip, the discovery has won four games, his latest a 3-2 defeat of the Giants yesterday, while the Redbirds have lost three.

Johnson, who up to then had appeared in 16 games for a record of one win and three lost, went in against the Pirates in the seventh inning last Monday and came out a winner. He started against the Phils in the opener of a double header on Friday, went the route to win again, and came back in the ninth frame of the night-cap to win his third in a row.

Yesterday he topped it all off by turning the Giants on six hits, to have the Cards from a shut-out in the four-game series and drop the Terrymen to a full game behind the Cubs, who blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers, 9-0. He had so much stuff that, after being clipped in the ninth for Wally Berger's eleventh homer of the year, he was able to choke the rally under his own power with the tying run on base.

Keep Up With Pa'ade
With Tex Carlton turning in a similar six-hit effort against the Dodgers to keep the Cubs out front, and Pirates nosing out the Phils, 6-5, with a run in the ninth, the Cards at least managed to keep up with the parade until Dean's return to action.

Meanwhile the Yanks carried on their American league slaughter. Where sophomore Joe DiMaggio was the batting star on Sunday Freshman Tom Henrich took up the burden yesterday against the Indians. His homer, double and single furnished four runs in the year for Lefty Gomez.

The White Sox kept their place, six games behind the Yanks, by edging out the Red Sox, 6-4, for a clean sweep of the series, and the Tigers mauled the Senators for an 8-4 triumph.

The Reds and Bees in the National and Athletics and Browns in the American league had open dates.

402 PLAYERS IN CHICAGO OPEN AT MEDINAH LINKS

Two Courses Will Be Used With Players Changing Links

Chicago, July 20—(AP)—A field of 402 players—218 professionals and 184 amateurs—was entered today in the $10,000 Chicago open golf tournament to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Medinah Country club.

Entries were closed last night, technically, but tournament officials indicated a few additional shot-makers might be given permission to compete before teeing off time. Bob Harlow, former Professional Golfers Association tournament manager and a tournament official, said the amateur list was the largest ever recorded for an open meet.

Two courses will be used. Eighteen holes will be played Friday and another 18 Saturday for qualifying. Half of the field will play the No. 3 course Friday and half the No. 1 course, with players changing courses Saturday. The 50 low scores and ties among professionals and the 25 low scores and ties among amateurs will qualify for the 36-hole final Sunday over the difficult No. 3 layout.

A carnival spirit will prevail. Seats have been erected for spectators at 10 locations on the course, and trick shot exhibitions, driving and putting contests and a hole-in-one tournament will provide a side-show atmosphere. A public address system will keep fans informed of developments on all parts of the courses.

Harry Cooper of Chicago, enjoying his most profitable season, is favored to win.

Two Pre-Tourney Net Favorites Are Eliminated

Des Moines, Ia., July 20—(AP)—With two pre-tourney favorites already victims of upsets, the Iowa State tennis meet entered its second day today with Harris Cogswell, Des Moines, defending champion, opening his title defense.

Frank Wegener, Jr., Des Moines, turned in the first surprise by eliminating Ed Loring, Kansas City, Mo., seeded No. 7, and another local competitor, Frank Nye, upset Art Nielsen of Evanston, one of the favorites, 7-5, 6-2 in opening round battles yesterday.

Remaining first round matches today included: Bob Swartz, Peoria, Ill., vs. Wally Smith, Talequah, Okla., and Leonard Prosser, Kansas City, Mo., vs. Forrest Hainline, Rock Island, Ill.

Dramatic

Wimbledon, Eng., July 20—(AP)—In one of the most dramatic matches in Davis Cup history, Don Budge, the California red-head, spotted Baron Gottfried von Cramm two sets and then beat him today, 6-8, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, 8-6 in the fifth and deciding match of the interzone finals between the United States and Germany.

Budge's victory sent the United States into the challenge round against Great Britain.

he Hoosiers. . . . Add rags to riches: Harold Littman, who used to hustle peanuts at Ebbe's field, has just signed a contract for his parkways football team of the American association to use the Dodger field this season when the Brooklyn football Dodgers are playing abroad.

FLOOD RELIEF CLOSED

St. Louis, Mo.—(AP)—Announcement by the American Red Cross offices that $1,361,500 was spent in flood disaster work in eight southern Illinois counties this year brought official notice all disaster operations in that area had been closed. More than 28,000 persons were estimated to have received assistance in the stricken area.

"Old Pegleg" Sets Example For His Players

Chicago, July 20—(AP)—He's the dean of all American league infielders and "Old Pegleg" to his mates, yet Jimmy Dykes, in his 20th major league season, still is showing the youngsters a trick or two.

The rotund little Chicago White Sox manager, who'll be 40 years old Nov. 10, isn't breaking into as many box scores as he used to. But when he does, as happened yesterday, fans and players alike realize the great job he is doing in keeping his club well up in the first division.

Handicapped by a sore leg all year, the scrappy Sox leader ever so often comes up with a performance that stamps him as one of the greatest competitive ball players in the game's history. His team was tied with Boston yesterday at 4-all in the eighth, with two on base. Dykes, with his bad leg so sore he could not place all his weight on it, went in to pinch hit and lashed a double to right-center which won the ball game.

A fast man could have made it a triple. Dykes, wincing with every step, actually hopped on one leg the last few feet to second base. It was the fifth straight win for the Sox.

The chunky pilot will talk about everything but where his club is liable to finish the season. He believes pennant talk will tighten up any club, and prefers to go along, taking the good with the bad, the wins with the losses.

Walton Girls Beat Amboy Girls 15-4; Amboy's Boys Win

ALLISON REAL SPORTSMAN AS HIS SUN SETS

Brookline, Mass., July 20—(AP)—Wilmir Allison of Austin, Tex., admittedly nearing the end of his long major-tournament playing career, thinks "lack of stamina" has kept him from the ranks of the world's greatest tennis players. Allison begins play today in the 45th Longwood bowl tournament after advancing on a first round default yesterday.

Now losing sets to players he would have brushed aside in his heyday, Allison, who has won every major tennis honor except Wimbledon's, said wistfully:

"I've gotten everything I've wanted out of tennis. I've had the strokes and the will to win, but I guess the things I lacked most were championship stamina and a better tennis physique."

"Of course, I've always kept myself in top condition, and even today, I'd say my stamina was probably in the best shape of my life."

The Texan, a former winner here, doesn't give himself much chance of retiring the Longwood bowl. Instead he picks young Gilbert Hunt of Washington, D. C. seeded eighth, as the probable winner.

"If Hunt plays the tennis of which he's capable (he was the runner-up for the intercollegiate title two years ago), he ought to win here in a breeze," Allison said.

Allison's pessimism for his chances is due to an injured right hand, suffered in fall at his home two weeks ago. He aggravated the injury last week while winning the Spring Lake, N. H., tournament.

Enrollment on the playgrounds is increasing daily. Much interest and rivalry is being shown in various contests and tournaments. This year's Congress—the sixteenth, again will be conducted as a feature of the International Live Stock Exposition to be held at Chicago November 26 to December 4. ## Chats About Folks and Farming

By the Farm Editor

A survey undertaken by the Bureau County National Farm Loan association shows there are 3200 farms in the county, the average size farm being 165 acres and the average value $8840 per acre. Of the total farms 54.6 per cent are operated by tenants and 45.4 per cent by owners. Of 564,000 acres of land in the county 92.4 per cent is in farms and of the total land 66 per cent is in crops, 25.2 per cent in pasture, and the remainder is city and town lots, forest land and swamps. The section including Ohio, Walnut, Greenville and Fairfield townships is classified as mixed livestock territory, while the remaining districts is 'classified as livestock and grain territory.

The Illinois Agricultural association started the month of July with a membership of more than 71,000, the highest since 1922-23. The year's quota was 8,454 and 59 of the 97 Farm Bureaus had exceeded their respective quotas on July 1 by about 300 members.

Paved feed lots for cattle save feed, bedding, manure and labor and add to the comfort and rate of gains of the cattle.

A total of 609, or 59.4 per cent, of the herds included in dairy herd improvement association tests last year averaged more than 300 pounds of butterfat a cow for the year. Five Illinois herds averaged more than 500 pounds of butterfat a cow last year.

Twenty-five co-operative dairy breeding associations are operating in Illinois as of June 1, according to dairy extension specialists of the state agricultural college.

Sweet clover is grazed by full-fed steers on several Illinois farms with good results, according to E. T. Robbins, livestock extension specialist of the college. These feeders feed one pound of cottonseed meal to 10 pounds of corn and make a rapid gain which increases as the sweet clover ripens. The cattle are finished in a dry lot with hay or sheep oats for dry roughage. All these farms are famous for their big yields of corn following the sweet clover.

Nine students of the state college of agriculture are to be given an opportunity to learn some of the practical methods of soil erosion control this summer. F. A. Fisher, state co-ordinator of the federal soil conservation service will assign the young men to CCC erosion camps as field assistants. Following an orientation period in the Edwardsville demonstration area, they will be assigned to the several camps in the state.

With $12 hogs a reality and $13 hogs in prospect, Illinois farmers in June hung up a six-year record in protecting their valuable pig crop against cholera. Last month, according to Ray E. Miller, director of livestock marketing of the IAA, Illinois farmers purchased cooperatively 6,453,000 cc of serum and virus through their county Farm Bureaus, the highest record since 1930, when 6,394,825 cc were used. Higher prices influenced more farmers to vaccinate their pigs.

Hot weather late in June and early in July created an unusual situation in the milk market at Chicago. Heat created a bigger demand for milk and at the same time it caused a drop in production. Some milk shipped to Chicago from this area was rejected because of improper cooling.

Nearly 400 per cent of the money invested by eight Illinois farm-owned creameries in a central butter printing and sales plant at Chicago has been returned to cream producers in the state during the eight months that the central plant has been operating, according to J. B. Countiss, sales manager of the Illinois Producers Creameries, an affiliate of the IAA. During June, the best month in the history of the central plant, a total of 500,000 pounds of butter was handled at a gross income of nearly $150,000. About two-thirds of all the butter churned by co-operative producers' creameries in Illinois is handled through the Chicago central plant.

H. M. Conway, market analyst of the National Livestock Marketing association, recently predicted that the peak in big prices would be reached late in July or early August. Hogs have sold recently for a top of $12.75. With prospects for a good corn crop throughout the corn belt, the outlook is good for somewhat lower hog prices this coming fall and winter. Hog prices, market experts say, are bound to remain relatively high for some time because of the reduced hog population and improved consumer buying power.

Winnebago county's second "Alfalfa day," originally set for July 19, has been postponed to July 26. During the all-day program the use of alfalfa and soybeans to build up and conserve the soil will be demonstrated. Charles R. Hutcheson, Waterloo, Ia., authority of alfalfa, is to speak. The field day will be held at the Roy Johns farm on the Rockton avenue road, near Rockford, and many farmers are expected to attend.

Illinois growers of fresh fruits and vegetables for market may find the adoption of standardized grades and packs one method of meeting the competition of distant producers. Other marketing recommendations are contained in Bulletin No. 435, prepared by S. W. Decker, associate in fruit and vegetable marketing, and J. W. Lloyd, chief in vegetable marketing, of the state college of agriculture. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained by writing the college at Urbana.

Dr. Charles E. Kellogg of the United States Department of Agriculture places world supplies of phosphate rock at about eighteen billion tons. More than one-third the known supply is in the United States, another third in Soviet Union and most of the remainder in Northern Africa. Europe uses nearly six million and Japan one million tons annually.

Lee county was represented at the recent meeting of Illinois farmers at Springfield for the purpose of urging passage of the farm bill now pending before Congress. Those attending were President J. E. Mau of the Lee County Farm Bureau, Farm Adviser C. E. Yale, J. M. Keay, Ellis Kugler, John Sheaffer, Howard Ritchie, Carl Sartorius, George Koford, W. E. Taylor, Dale Rosenkrans, Leon Garrison, Justin Becker and J. C. Griffith. The bill as drafted provides parity prices for the farmer. The measure has been summarized in this department heretofore.

Approximately $2,000,000 of loans extending to farmers in the region comprising Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio had been repaid as of June 30 and payments were expected to increase substantially following the wheat harvest in the southern area, according to R. ## NEW TYPE STATE HERD O. K.'D FOR DAIRY CONGRESS

Nine States Approve Class to Include Ten Animals

The management of the Dairy Cattle Congress, which is to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, September 27 to October 3, announces that changes in plans of the new state herd class have been approved by representatives of nine states, and the new class will be shown for the first time at the Dairy Cattle Congress this coming fall.

It has been decided that ten head of cattle is all that is required to be brought to the Congress from any state in order to qualify for the $100 being offered for each herd that is shown, regardless of how the herd places in the contest. All of the animals shown in the state herd class at the Congress must be selected through an elimination process of district or parish shows for each of the five breeds, Holsteins, Guernseys, Jerseys, Ayrshires and Brown Swisses.

The state herd of ten will include the following animals: One bull, two years old or over; one bull, two years old or over; three cows, two years old or over; two heifers, one year old and under two; one heifer calf, and two extra animals of any age, either sex. No breeder will be allowed to show more than three of his animals in his state herd class.

With the advent of a successful crop this season, industrial firms are becoming more optimistic. Reservations for exhibition space for the Congress are far ahead of the mark set last year. It is believed by the management that the value of the industrial exhibits this year will exceed one million dollars.

With premium lists being boosted it is expected dairy cattle and Belgian horse exhibits will be the best in the history of the show. There will be ten monies in the thirteen individual classes of all breeds of cattle instead of eight as in previous years.

Lee Co. Among Big Producers For Canneries

Lee county is among the six counties of Illinois listed as large producers of canneries crops. The other counties are Stephenson, Boone, DeKalb, Iroquois and Vermilion. Acreage of vegetable crops commonly used for commercial canning increased from 1919 to 1929 by 138 per cent, while those crops marketed only as fresh produce increased by only 48 per cent. From 1929 to 1935 the acreage in vegetable crops in the state further increased by 24 per cent. Union county is the only one in Illinois producing any volume of fresh vegetables for distant markets. Counties producing large quantities of vegetables for canneries as well as for sale in the fresh state are Cook, Will, Kankakee, Kane, Whiteside, Rock Island, Peoria, Woodford, Tazewell, McLean, Adams, Madison and St. Clair.

In the districts south and west of Harmon the corn in some fields is so high that guides are needed to prevent visitors becoming lost. There are some patches of late planting, however, that do not look so good.

Gilbert Carver, near Lamolite, lost a valuable hog as a result of the heat last week.

Mendota will be host to the LaSalle county 4-H fair August 10 and 11.

The George Politich farm south of Compton was purchased by George Henrich at $137.50 per acre. The farm has a good house and other buildings and a large orchard.

Bureau county will hold its county fair at Princeton August 31, September 1, 2, 3.

Plans are being made for the annual picnic of the Lee county Farm Bureau and the county 4-H show. It is expected both will take place at Amboy August 10 and 11. The 4-H folks plan to show some cattle, pigs, sheep and poultry.

The Ogle County Farm Bureau will have its annual picnic at the fair grounds at Oregon August 21.

A few farmers from the northern part of the county were planning to attend the alfalfa demonstration scheduled for today on the Rawleigh farms near Freeport. "Alfalfa Hutch" Hutchinson, editor of Modern Agriculture, was to be in charge.

FARMERS OF LEE COUNTY EXPECT BIG CORN CROP

Oats in This Section Are About 50 Per Cent Cut

In nearly all sections of Lee county corn is doing nicely and with favorable weather from now until harvest time a crop much larger than last year is in prospect. The corn is particularly high in the southwestern part of the county. Some farmers have estimated certain fields will yield 100 bushels to the acre, if the weather man behaves, but it is probable these estimates are a bit too high, even for exceptional fields.

Oats in the county are about 50 per cent cut. Rust has done slight damage to oats, but some fields will make as high as 50 bushels to the acre and in others the yield will be higher than a year ago.

There is comparatively little wheat in Lee county, and probably not more than a half dozen farmers in the county have combined their wheat crop this season. One field in the county yielded 18 bushels. In the state the wheat yield further south has been cut by rust, and in the extreme southern section of Illinois better than average wheat yields have been reported. Winter wheat harvest for the state is about 80 per cent and threshing about 35 per cent completed. Wet weather in some sections the last week slowed up field work and resulted in some lowering of the quality of unharvested winter wheat.

Little Soybean Hay

Lee county farmers, who lost large areas of clover and alfalfa because of adverse weather conditions, have been unable to harvest the quantity ordinarily harvested during the season. Considerable timothy hay has been cut, however.

Local farmers who planted soybeans for hay this spring have played in hard luck in many instances. Frequent rains have washed away the seed after planting on many farms. Soybeans planted for seed, however, are doing better, but in some sections the soybean fields are heavy with grass.

Farmers of the county are reporting a scarcity of help to harvest their crops. In some cases the farmers are paying $2.50 to $3.00 per day and board for experienced hands.

BUREAU LEADERS NOW IN SESSION AT SPRINGFIELD

Rural Homemakers to Hear Organization Benefits

The second annual conference and training school for leaders of the 50 Home Bureaus of Illinois is being held at the State Fair grounds at Springfield this week. The session opened today and will continue through Friday. Lee and Bureau counties are represented at the meeting. Ogle county has not yet completed its organization of a Home Bureau.

About 150 women, representing more than 15,000 rural home-makers of the state, are participating in the conference. Three delegates from each Home Bureau are permitted to attend, and in most counties these have included the president, vice president and citizenship chairman of each Home Bureau. Organization and Home Bureau organization are being stressed at the Springfield conference.

"These rural homemakers are getting together to become better acquainted, to discuss mutual problems, to rest and to have a good time as they study some of the aims of their organization," said Mrs. Kathryn Van Aken Burns, state leader of home economics extension of the Illinois college of agriculture. She is scheduled to address one of the sessions on the subject, "The Homemaker's Interest in Adult Education."

To Discuss Benefits

A panel discussion touching on the topic of benefits derived from community units will be led by W. P. Sanford, editor of the Pontiac News-Review. Legislative problems as they relate to the home and community were to be explained by Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington.

Other speakers include Miss Lita Bane, head of the department of home economics of the state college; Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, Chicago, Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation; John Watson and George Metzger, Chicago, of the Illinois Agricultural association, and Mrs. Elsie Mies, Urbana, organization chairman for the Illinois Home Bureau Federation. Ogle county folks will recall Mrs. Mies as one of the principal speakers at the last annual meeting of the Ogle County Farm Bureau.

Farmers Become Trap Shooters

Illinois farmers are turning more and more to trap shooting for diversion. Evidence of this trend was displayed at the trap shoot sponsored by the Farm Bureau the other day at DeKalb. Fourteen farmers participated in the event, which was to select a team to represent the county in the trap shooting tournament to be staged in connection with the Illinois farm sports festival at Urbana September 3 and 4. Other counties, too, are grooming teams for this event. All contestants in the DeKalb meet fired at ten targets each in the preliminaries. In the finals, the five high score men shot at ten additional targets. Three broke 16 of 20 "birds" and two broke 15 and 14. All firing was done at 16 yards. The state festival committee held another meeting at Urbana yesterday to make additional plans for the big event.

Killed Motors Help Save Lives

Innocent grain fields often become fields of battle and farmers become the battle-torn, war-scarred veterans minus fingers, hands, arms or legs, simply because the unexpected happened when a binder or combine was in operation.

The IAA safety department points out that several fatalities and many serious accidents to combine operators were reported in Illinois last season. Most of these accidents were caused by the machine being started while the operator or helper were cleaning or adjusting it.

"When such adjustments are made, stop the tractor or combine motor until the task is completed," warns the safety department. "This is the only safe way to handle the situation. In this way there can be no mistake caused by the sound of the motor making conversation and orders difficult to understand."

Ogle Farm Value $81.30 an Acre

The average value of farm land on Ogle county's 2,900 farms is $81.30 an acre, according to a survey report made by A. A. Lauer, secretary-treasurer of the Ogle County National Farm Loan association. Of the 484,000 acres of land in the county 96.5 per cent is in farms. Of the land total 69.3 per cent is in crops, 26.5 in pastures, and the remaining area includes cities, towns and timber land. Nearly all of Ogle county is classified as mixed livestock farming area. The county has 417 cash grain farms, 1,102 animal specialty farms, 541 general type farms and 393 dairy farms.

FRANK PRIEBE'S WEEKLY LETTER TO POULTRY RAISERS

On July 1 there was almost twice as much poultry in the cold storages as there was a year ago. At the same time, there was about 20 per cent less young chickens in the country.

These are facts. It is evident that any chickens sold now must compete in the markets with the large supply of poultry marketed last year and still in the freezers. This may help you to understand why the price of chickens has not kept up with the advancing prices of all other farm products.

However, that kind of a situation always adjusts itself.

Now, for instance, with meat so expensive, people are eating more chicken, which is rapidly using up the supply we have on hand.

When it's gone people will have to depend entirely on this year's crop for their supply of poultry. And this year's crop is 20 per cent less than last year's.

So everything points to better poultry markets.

Grow Chickens BIG

Chickens which are being sold at light weights now are being sacrificed.

Here in the Middle West we have always been able to get more for heavy chickens than for broilers. This fall we're undoubtedly going to see the best price for heavy chickens that we have seen in years.

You'll regret it, I'm sure, if you don't feed these young birds to roasting size.

The practice of putting growing birds in summer shelters out on clean range is becoming more common every year. And it's an excellent idea. When these open air shelters are used, there is no need to sell any of the birds to keep them from being too crowded.

Almost everyone has harvested a good crop of small grain and there is plenty of green feed. With some corn (it doesn't take so much in hot weather) and a good supplement, you have a ration which will make fine, big roasters out of your young cockerels.

I'm sure you won't be sorry if you keep them—and feed them!

CARROLL COUNTY FEEDERS EMPLOY COLLEGE RATION

Greenawalt Bros. Have Reputation for Top Prices

Greenawalt Brothers, over in Carroll county, topped the Chicago market recently with a carload of 1014-pound fat yearlings, which brought $14.15 per hundred weight. They are among the long list of boosters for the feeding plan advocated by the state college of agriculture, according to E. T. Robbins, livestock extension specialist.

The brothers adopted the recommended feeding plan back in 1931 when Robbins first visited their farm. They had just obtained 120 Texas calves and agreed to use the ration consisting of shelled corn,

MOLASSES FAILS TO OUST CORN FOR HOG FEED

Tests at State College Show Ration Offers Little Saving

For Illinois farmer to realize a profit by replacing high-priced corn with molasses in the ration for fattening pigs, the molasses would need to cost not less than one-eighth to one-fifth as much as corn a pound, according to W. E. Carroll, formerly chief in swine husbandry and Wise Burroughs, assistant in animal husbandry, at the Illinois college of agriculture.

Although many Illinois cattlemen have obtained satisfactory results in substituting part of the corn in cattle ration that contained ample protein, tests conducted by the agricultural college showed that molasses fed to pigs was unsatisfactory from the standpoint of the finish of the pigs, rate of gain and saving of feed.

One lot of pigs under test received 20 per cent of molasses, another 30 per cent and a third or check lot received no molasses. Pigs fed the molasses ration ate their feed less readily and had a smaller daily intake as an average for the entire test.

Likewise, the pigs that received no molasses gained more rapidly than the others at all stages of the experiment. The molasses-fed pigs required from two to three weeks longer than the others to reach market weights.

Non-Molasses Pigs Better

At the weight of 20 pounds, pigs in the check lot were more highly finished than the others and their coats were in better condition. The difference in hair condition was noticeable early in the test.

Each 100 pounds of molasses fed to pigs on the small molasses ration replaced only 2 pounds of feed, and each 100 pounds of molasses fed to those on the larger molasses ration saved only 21 pounds of feed.

"Swine feeders of the Corn Belt develop a keen interest in the possibility of substituting molasses for corn in their feeding operations whenever corn becomes scarce and high priced for an considerable period," it is explained. "The test rations included rather large proportions of molasses since Illinois swine growers will have little occasion to feed molasses except in years of short corn crops and then will want to feed molasses as extensively as possible."

soybean oil meal or lised meal, alfalfa or clover hay and a little salt.

Their first lot of sters did well on the ration, gaining 575 pounds apiece in ten months, which is almost two pounds a day. The mixture of corn and soybean meal at the rate of 8 pounds of corn to 1 pound of the protein feed, which is about the proportion used at the state college.

Since adopting this practical, economical type of ration, Greenawalt Brothers each year have sold sters at or near the top of the market. They have adhered consistently to soybean and lised meal as sources of protein.

They usually buy two carloads of Texas calves each fall, about the number which can be fed handily with the crops grown on their place. They find these cattle fit well into their program of soil improvement and the utilization of crops on the farm.

McCormick - Deering Milkers

Keep the Bacteria Count Down

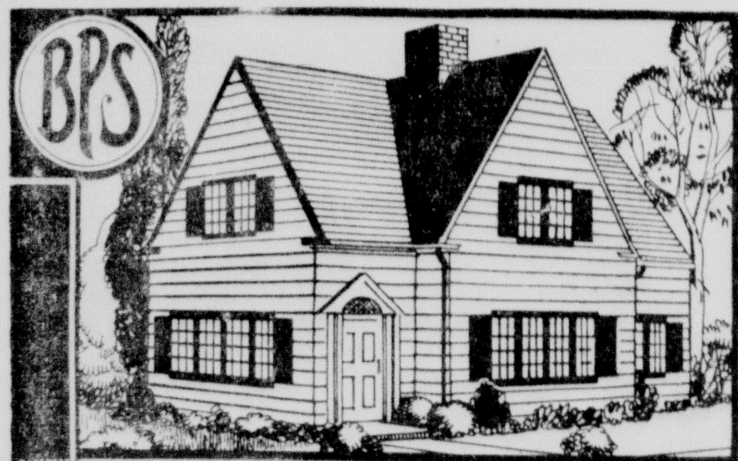

DAIRYMEN who have had long experience with mechanical milkers praise the McCormick-Deering for its features of sanitation. They report producing milk with a lower bacteria count than ever before, due to the fact that the McCormick-Deering is so easy to keep clean.

The fully enclosed, no-oil, no-spring pulsator; the two-piece teat cup assembly; the replaceable cylinder in the pump; the vacuum tank; the positive vacuum regulator and vacuum gauge; the one-piece sanitary pail cover; and the anti-freeze stall cocks are other features of real importance on the McCormick-Deering Milker.

CHECKS FOR OLD AGE PENSIONERS STILL WITHHELD

Federal Officials Unsatisfied With Set Up in Illinois

Springfield, Ill., July 20.—(AP)—Approximately 110,000 old age pensioners in Illinois continued payless today as distribution of July checks awaited word from Washington on whether federal funds would be allotted for matching state moneys.

Public Welfare Director A. L. Bowen ordered that the checks still be held up as the federal social security board prepared a report on a hearing last week at which charges of inefficiency in administration of the old age assistance act were aired.

Bowen, with James H. Andrews, old age assistance superintendent, and John C. Weigal, public welfare fiscal supervisor, appeared before the board at Washington to discuss the state's statistical and accounting system.

Upon his return yesterday, Bowen declined to comment on the meeting other than to say it was an "amicable" conference but indicated he was hopeful the matter was ironed out and payments could be resumed soon.

Charge Inefficiency
H. L. McCarthy, regional director at Chicago for the social security board, yesterday said that the delay in the July payments was due to charges of general inefficiency filed against the state pension administration by the board's investigators.

In the past the federal government has paid half of the Illinois pensions. Withdrawal of federal approval would mean that the maximum monthly pension would drop from $30 to $15.

McCarthy asserted there was nothing to prevent the state from using its own funds for paying its own share or even the full allotments for the month. However, Bowen said no checks would be issued prior to receipt of the board's decision as to whether further allotments would be forthcoming.

$600,000 Appropriation
Bowen declared that amendments to the pension act adopted at the recent legislative session would clear up the situation and prevent recurrence of "unavoidable" conditions as the law previously stood.

About one-half the checks for April and all for May were held up when federal officials asked for assurance that the state could meet its share when a deficiency arose. This was remedied by a $600,000 appropriation made quickly by the legislature.

Brain Twizzlers

By PROF. J. D. FLINT

Here is one of the most puzzling cases of recent years which hinged upon a peculiar clue.

A man had been murdered in his palatial country home. Four suspects had been in the house at different times and the chief problem of the police was to determine the time of the murder. The victim had been walking through a reception hall toward a staircase when he was shot from behind. The bullet passed through his body and by chance, pierced the minute and hour hands of a large clock, pinning them together and stopping the clock. Unfortunately some unknown person had spun the hands of the clock so that police couldn't see the exact time although they knew fairly closely because they established the fact that the murder had taken place between five and six o'clock. What was the exact time?

STEM RUST IS CAUSING LOSSES TO WHEAT CROP

Experts Say Infection Not Expected Next Year

Black stem rust which is costing Illinois farmers thousands of dollars this year in wheat losses need not cause alarm with respect to next year's crop, in the opinion of Benjamin Koehler, associate chief in crop pathology of the Illinois college of agriculture. Unusual weather conditions experienced this year such as protracted periods of southwest winds and almost continuous damp weather are held responsible for black stem rust this year.

"In earlier years outbreaks of black stem rust were common," he said, "but now that barberries are quite generally eradicated in Illinois, the younger generation of farmers hardly remember the serious outbreak of 1916 and intermittent outbreaks prior to that time."

To carry over from one season to another in Illinois, the black stem rust requires the common barberry plant on which it must pass part of its life period. During the last fifteen years a campaign waged by the Federal government has almost eradicated the common barberry in Illinois.

Wind Carries Infection
But the present infestation did not come from barberries, Koehler explained. The infection blew in from Mexico and Texas where barberry is not necessary in the life cycle of black stem rust. In that climate the red spore stage overwinters and attack wheat directly. Only the black spore stage overwinters in Illinois, and it can attack only the common barberry—not the ornamental Japanese barberry.

Black stem rust causes long deep cankers and is confined largely to the stems, leaf sheaths and glumes of the heads. On the other hand, orange leaf rust, which also attacked Illinois wheat this year, affects principally blades of the leaf and is also found on leaf sheaths. Both are red in their early stages. It is only as the straw begins to turn dry that black stem rust becomes black.

Orange leaf rust and scab, which caused part of the damage this year, are prevalent whenever continued damp weather prevails in late spring and early summer. However, some wheat varieties suffer less loss than other.

Aids Marketing
To protect the quality and maintain the market value of the 1937 wheat crop, which is now suffering from rust and smut, Illinois farmers are turning to wheat cleaning and treating equipment, according to J. C. Hackleman, crop extension specialist of the state college.

Seven portable seed cleaning and treating machines are now available in southern Illinois and three new ones have been ordered largely as a result of a wheat improvement program being carried on in that section through co-operation of the extension service of the college, Indiana and Illinois millers and local farm advisers. Prospects are for several machines in this area before many months.

"Farmers who take advantage of these seed cleaning machines are better able to market their wheat without having it degraded because of undesirable qualities," Hackleman said.

"Use of cleaning equipment is especially important if the wheat is to be used for seed. In addition to removing weed seeds, the machine throws out cracked grains and grains shriveled by rust and smut. This wheat can be used to feed chickens and other livestock. If seeded with good wheat, the cracked and shriveled grain would be wasted."

'GALENA GUIDE' COMPLETED BY W. P. A. WRITERS

Chicago, July 20.—(AP)—Distribution began today of the Galena Guide, first in a series of historical booklets published by the Illinois division of the federal writers project, a works progress administration enterprise.

Six thousand copies of the 79-page guide, with a streamlined cover in blue and gold, came off the presses in the first printing. It will be placed on sale.

The WPA unit furnished all editorial material, gathered during months of research, and provided photographs, numerous woodcuts used in illustrations and maps.

The city of Galena under a sponsorship agreement provided for printing and distribution with a WPA stipulation that publication must be a non-profit venture.

George A. Rollins, acting state director of the federal writers project, said sponsorship agreements also had been signed with Aurora, Cairo, Elgin, Joliet, Douglas county; with Delavan for a centennial publication and Chicago for a charter jubilee booklet.

Negotiations were progressing for compilation of similar guides to the city of Chicago and numerous others in the state, he said.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON SMOOTH WORN TIRES

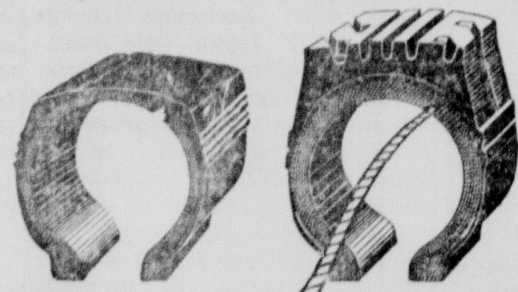

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to unsafe tires?

At right is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

At left is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick, non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in and see a demonstration.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

PLANTAIN, A COMMON WEED, IS THE CHIEF CAUSE OF HAY FEVER IN THE SPRING!

The EARWIG

HAS THE MOST UNIQUE WAY OF FOLDING ITS WINGS OF ANY KNOWN INSECT! THE WING FOLDS LIKE A FAN UNTIL NEARLY CLOSED, THEN IS BENT BACK AND TUCKED UNDER THE WING COVERS, ALMOST COMPLETELY OUT OF SIGHT.

HUMAN BEINGS CAN CONTRACT RABBIT FEVER (TULAREMIA) FROM MORE THAN 20 ANIMALS OTHER THAN RABBITS.

UNTIL recently, grasses were blamed for most of the hay fever occurring in the spring. Now it has been proved that about 20 per cent of it is due to the plantain family. The English, or narrow-leaved type, appears to be the worst offender in this respect.

NEXT: What really does most of the tree birdling attributed to rabbits?

Money Order Leads to Identification of Accident Victim

Springfield, Ill., July 20—(AP)—Effie Williams of Springfield, whose name was on a money order found on the body of a man killed at Everet, Kan., said the victim probably was Earl Mead of Elwood, Ind. The man was killed yesterday when he failed to lower his head as a freight train on which he was riding went through an underpass.

The Springfield woman said Mead, about 22, was here 10 days ago while on his way to the harvest field in Kansas.

The California earthquake of 1906, which was of only moderate intensity, generated enough energy to have lifted a cubic mile of earth 6000 feet into the air.

CHAPTER V

WEDNESDAY: Wonder if there's anything to what Peter told me last night when I tucked him into bed. Thought at the time he was just imagining things. Told him he mustn't make up stories.

"They're not stories, Joy," he insisted sitting up in bed. "I really did find a haunted house in the woods today."

"Nonsense, Peter. There aren't any haunted houses nowadays," I declared.

"Well, there's one, the one I found today. It's way off in the woods. I walked all round it first, for I didn't see anyone around. Then I climbed up on some rocks and looked in at the windows."

"Why, Peter, that wasn't a very nice thing to do . . . what would the people who live in it think?"

"I didn't see anybody . . . least not at first . . . only dishes on the table and guns—"

"Now, Peter, you're making up a fairy story. You're too big for that sort of thing. Better go to sleep," I said, and I started towards the door.

"Wait, wait, there was a man," Peter begged, "and a dog. I must tell you about that first. Somebody opened the door, and a great big hound dog came lickity split after me. I looked back, and a fat ugly man cried, 'Hey, Jigger, call your dog. If Nero bites that kid—'"

"Oh, Peter, you must be careful. Sometimes strange dogs don't like little boys."

"HE liked me all right. I told him I wasn't afraid. I patted his dog. Then the one they called Jigger—he had queer dark eyes—said: 'Live around here, sonny?'"

"Sure," I answered, "down at the teahouse." Then better get home to your folks! But I told him I'd like to come and play with Nero some other day."

"You must never go and play with anybody unless it's with someone we know. If anything happened I wouldn't know where to find you," I said, startled at hearing the name of Jigger.

"Well, I guess I don't get a chance to play with Nero. The fat little man sounded pretty mad when he said, 'Nothing doing, kid, you stay where you belong.'"

"That's just what I say, you stay at home and maybe Cal will find you some nice playmate."

"I'm going to get a dog. The Jigger fellow came after me and told me if I stay at home he'd get me a nice pup all for myself."

"Well, well, we'll have to see about that," I said, and switching off the light, I left the room.

Now, as I sit at my desk, I'm beginning to wonder if there is something queer going on in the woods. Surely if Peter was making up that story he'd never have used the name of Jigger. . . . I wonder if that's the same man who gave me such a fright that night. Must sound out Cal again. Maybe he'll tell me what he knows.

THAT reminds me, he does like to bring us news. When he appeared this morning (he drives up in a car of uncertain age) he said:

"Well, girls, Miss Pegler's opened her cottage again, and, by gosh, she's brought a handsome young man with her."

"Who is he?" Tess demanded. She's always interested in new young men, likes to measure them against her devoted Jimmy to see if she's got the best the marriage mart has to offer her.

"The gardener says he's her nephew . . . ain't been here since he was a kid . . . been at college . . . abroad . . . and reckon he's old enough to have had a job too."

"Don't believe he needs a job, Cal," Tess declared. "Miss Pegler's terribly rich."

"Every man should have a job . . . this chap too . . . even if he's expecting to get her money when she goes. You bet you'd never find me waiting for dead men's shoes, or women's either . . . specially women's. You can't tell what they'll do . . . leave all their fortune to the heathen or marry some old flame."

"Gee, Cal, you're encouraging," Tess cried. "Guess I'll have to look into this. Hope Miss Pegler brings him around pronto, and if he's to be here all summer . . ."

"You keep your hands off him," Big Kate said. Guess there's no love lost between the head waitress and the cook.

Cal found a playmate for Peter. His name's Tad Coyne . . . his father's looking after the landscaping of a resort known as Serene Shore.

Got a sidelight from Big Kate on Peter's haunted house . . . says it used to be a bootleggers' hang-out in prohibition days, but him!

that Cal could tell me something more about it if he cared to. So Peter's story was no make-believe. Wish I'd more time to be a Sherlock Holmes. Thought it queer when Cal said earlier in the day: "Peter's safer along the shore than in the woods."

VET it was only yesterday that he informed me there were no poisonous snakes in the state, which was quite a relief for I must confess I'm not on friendly terms with rattlers and puff adders! Can't agree with the old fellow. I'd advocate the woods for Peter every time, for the boats are anchored along the shore and how my small brother loves them!

When Tad and he appeared at the tearoom this afternoon just when I'd settled down to read (I get an hour off about 4 unless we're swamped with customers) they insisted I go for a walk with them, so we headed for the woods.

"Let's take this path," Peter said. "Cal told me there is an old cabin which the men used when they were logging, and maybe Tad and I could make a fortress out of it."

"Well, if it's not too far away that might be a jolly playhouse." My thoughts turned to rainy days and Mrs. Fenwick's dislike of having small boys around, so we walked gaily along.

"Gee," cried Peter, stopping beside a tree which had a fresh gash in its bark, then glancing at the grass which was laid flat, "I bet there's been a truck in here."

"Nonsense," I cried. "I don't believe this road goes anywhere. It's little more than a path."

"But look, Sis, some heavy thing must have done this," and he pointed to a rut where the dark soil showed.

"Oh, perhaps some picnickers tried to get through, but come on, and let's find that camp for I'll have to get back to the tearoom before long."

CIO CHIEFTAIN SPENDS GREAT SUM ON HOUSE

Labor Leader Finding Fine Profit in His Undertakings

Washington, D. C.—A crew of skilled artisans were engaged today at nearby Alexandria, Va., restoring a historic house to a state of splendor befitting the dwelling of one of the new "princes of privilege" who have arisen to affluence in championing the cause of labor.

The home, which is reported to have been purchased for $27,500, is being restored at a reported cost of $30,000. It will be occupied shortly by John L. Lewis, czar of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Lewis has found his efforts in behalf of labor profitable. Since 1920 he has found the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America the most profitable labor job in the country—and therefore in the world.

Huge Fund at His Disposal

Recently he had the union president's salary raised from $12,000 to $15,000 a year. The president has an annual drawing account of $12,000 and an office fund of $40,000 a year for which he does not have to account. A daughter, who is his secretary, and a brother, who is his press agent, are paid from this fund.

To date Lewis has taken no compensation as chairman of the C. I. O. Should he be successful in establishing the organization on a dues paying basis, it is expected that he will reward himself in its behalf with a handsome salary.

That the Lewis who thunders challenges to capital is a vastly different person from the Lewis who bows and scrapes in drawing rooms is no secret in Washington.

For one who declares himself a horny-handed son of toil, Lewis can wear his white tie and tails and handle his silver perfectly.

Boys Way Into Society

Fame came to the home when Light Horse Harry Lee delivered his famous oration, "First in War, First in Peace and First in the Hearts of his Countrymen" within its walls when citizens of Alexandria gathered in the old home to make arrangements for Washington's funeral.

The Lewises frequently are on the capital's society pages as attending this or that dinner or reception. They are frequently guests at the Russian embassy, which does not surprise their Alexandria neighbors and members of the A. F. of L. who look upon the C. I. O. as a branch of communism.

In recent months Mrs. Lewis has been almost as socially active as the wife of a cabinet member. She has been as busy pouring at teas and assisting at various homes as her husband has in being one of the common people.—Chicago Tribune.
